(Correspondence Louisville Democrat. CORINTH, MISS., July 27, 1862.

Editors Democrat-Gentlemen: The suggestion thrown out in my last letter as to ending the war, is more thoroughly riveting itself on my mind as a plan which quibblers who stay at home and growl at government, will throw up their hands in holy horror at the very idea of banishing people from their homes, compelled though people from their nomes, compelled though they be to seek their friends and had hearts to feet a parriotic inrot, and spirits willing to endure the pangs of leav-ing home and friends, that they may in some measure help to restore the country dear to them as life itself. Is it nothing to the point that there are now from four to six hundred thousand men who are fathers, husbands, brothers, with strong affections calling them back to the homes they have left, to fight the battles which traitors' heads have tted? You, Messrs. Editors, who set osily in your office, and go daily through your work, and when evening comes seek the comforts of home, the smile of affection from a loving wife, and the joyful prattle of innocent and happy children, may even look coldly and philosophically on this plan, which proposes to aid the war by pushing all its elements together on the shores of the Gulf of Mexico, where it may ruminate on treason, and starve to their heart's ontent. I know your detestation of treason; I know your devotion to the Constitution and the laws; but, nevertheless, looking at things through the newspapers, you so but dimly; you cannot appreciate the full sacrifice which is being made constantly by the many thousands who have volunteered to serve their country in this her much of the comfort of rebels. There has been but one visible effect that I have noticed, and that is the exchange of eighteen prisoners, which took place on the 19th inst. During the above exchanging an accident occurred that is to be regretted. While the flag of truce was going toward Tazewell with the Secesh prisoners, a regiment which had been sent out on a scout, not knowing of the flag of truce coming, and having heard of a party road that day, very naturally thought, when they heard them approaching, they were the same. So the regiment took their position on the side of the road and watched for their approach, which was not long; and as they came up, they let into them, and it was the greatest wonder in the world that the whole party was not exterminated on the spot; but as it only two of the secesh prisoners were killed on the ground, and several more wounded ogether with Capt. Lyons, of the Engineer Corps, and Lieut. Col. Kegwin, of the Forty-ninth Indiana, of Jeffersonville, both of whom were only bruised by being thrown from their horses, which became perfectly frantic when the firing commenced. Col. > (Special to the New York World.) WASHINGTON, August 1.

Ex-Governor Dennison, General Bates, and Representative Gurley, and Larz An-derson, all of Ohio, arrived here this morning, at the request of Governor Tod, and had a long interview with the Secretary of War, the President, and General Halleck regarding military interests in Southern Ohio, together with those of Kentucky, which ended most satisfactory, and it is probable that all that the committee came after will be accomplished.

To-night they had an important interview with Gen. Halleck, during which he alluded to the negro question, and said that he was now, and always had been, in favor of using negroes within the military lines, and confiscating all slaves and other property of rebels in arms. In addition, he said that General McClel-

The defensive policy was strongly attacked, and both Lee and Beauregard advised the invasion of the North at three points, namely: From Cumberland or Wiliamsport into Pennsylvania; from Louisville and Cincinnati into Indiana and Ohio and from Paducah and Cairo into Illinois. It is alleged that the following plan of operations for the remainder of the campaign was agreed upon:

First. The immediate obstruction James river, so as to make it impossible for McClellan to use it as a means for communication with the Government, and for the transportation of re-enforcements and army supplies. Second. The occupation of Williamsburg, orktown, and the entire Peninsula.

Third. The recovery of the whole of the territory of Virginia and the suppression of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. Fourth. The recovery of New Orleans, emphis, and the Mississippi river, and the expulsion of the Federal troops from Ten-nessee and Kentucky. Latest from Below.

From the Memphis Svening Bulletin, 23th July By the steamer Conway, which arrived our wharf about two o'clock Sunday from Helena.

The reported crossing of troops and ammunition, by Gen. Price, at some point between Napoleon and Vicksburg, induced den. Curtis to make a rigid personal exploration. At Napoleon there was a steam-ferryboat plying across the river, but the owners, on seeing the steamboat containing Gen. Curtis approach, ran off up Arkansas river. It was followed, overtaken and captured, together with fifteen other ferry and flatboats. The report was that the Confederates were crossing forces up the Arkansas. Hence General Curtis went up the river to the "White river cut-off," about 35 miles capturing boats at every turn, and returned by White river, where he left a portion of his captured booty, as he might have an opportunity to use it hereafter.

Gen. Jeff. Thompson was at Austin, four-teen miles this side of Helena, on Friday morning. He had about twenty-five wagons of ammunition a short distance off, and came in to see what the propect was of crossing to the Arkansas side at in the town, but shortly after Pederal force surrounded the place and Gen. It is supposed the Confeds imagine that Gen. Curtis' force is going directly to Little Rock, where there are few guns and but little ammunition, and the object is to re-enforce their friends and send them supplies. They have had meager success in rossing thus far. The troops under General Curtis are represented as improving in health and in fine spirits, and anxiously waiting for "semething to turn up."

STEAMBOAT EXPLOSION AND FIRE

Great Loss of Life and Destruction of Property!

About half-past six o'clock last evening, the most terrible accident occurred at the river that we have been forced to chronicle for years-casting a gloom over the community. The steamer Commodore Perry, Capt. Andrews, which arrived in the morning from Cumberland river with a load of mediately eaught fire. She had been receiving additional freight, destined for Cincinnati, and was about to leave when the accident occurred. It is utterly impossible to tell the loss of life, though it was great, as most of the passengers were at the supper table. The ncise and confusion, the shrieks of the wounded-shouts and cries of men, and neighing of horses, amid the smoke and steam, were terrific. Many of the passeugers jumped overboard, and, as the lines were still on shore, though not fast, reached the shore in safety. Others who jumped over were drowned. Those who were blown into the river were either killed by the concussion or drowned in the water. One lady with a child in her arms accompanied by an elderly woman, believed o be her mother, jumped overboard on the shore side and fell with her entire weight on the edge of a sunken skiff, striking her in the breast and head; the blow deprived her of life for a time, but she was resuscitated and removed for proper attention; the elderly lady also jumped but, towards the river side, and going in head first must have been drowned.

Two or three firemen, who were standing in front of the boilers at the time, were dreadfully scalded; one of them, Wm. White, of Pittsburg, cannot live. The books and papers baving been lost, it is impossible to give a list of the passengers, or even of those lost. The number killed and drowned is believed to have been 10 or 12.

Mr. Geo. J. Clark, agent of the Cincin nati, Hamilton & Dayton R. R. Co., who was in the clerk's office at the time, was blown up so that his head struck the hurricame roof, but he fell back again, and rushed out on the guards, and, as soon as he recovered from the shock, gave all the assistance he could. His account of the scene is graphic. He finally managed to escape to the shore, after jumping overboard, but

The cotton on board caught fire instantly, and the flames spread with terrific rapidity. The steam fire engines were soon at the spot, but they could not save anything above the hold. There were a number of horses aboard; two or three were saved. The number of passengers was believed to be about thirty. Capt. Andrews and the clerk are among the uninjured.

The amount of cotton we did not learn, but it was heavy. A portion of it was shipped by Messrs. Guthrie & Co., of this were a part of the "chivalry" who were encity. The tobacco will be mostly saved, gaged in the raid on Mt. Sterling. This though in a damaged condition, as it was in could not ascertain.

Of its peculiar merits we have no desire to multiply words, and will append the opinion of one just opened a newspaper depot, in the old of our most noted and popular citizens, Hon. C. A. Wickliffe:

"Messrs. Sumner & Co.: I purchased one of Wheeler & Wilson's Sewing Mapers that are published, and can furnish you chines about a year ago—it has given en-with anything you want in that line. These tire satisfaction. The amount of work which can be performed is very great, and it is a great labor saving machine. I regard t as a valuable improvement and invention. I prefer the machine to any I have seen, on account of its quietness, simplicity, speed and durability, and I do most sincerely recommend it to others. "Yours respectfully,
